No Child Left Behind

The Federal No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (No Child Left Behind), Public Law 107-110, is designed to improve student achievement with accountability, flexibility and choice so that “no child is left behind.” It implements sweeping reforms in America’s schools that are based upon stronger accountability for results; expanded options and choices for parents; emphasis on teacher quality and teaching methods that work; and consolidation and flexibility. The Board of Education embraces the reform principles embodied in the No Child Left Behind Act and requires the Superintendent to implement administrative procedures as necessary to ensure compliance with requirements of the No Child Left Behind Act.
