Your Turn to Lead Conference: Your Voice Matters

Girl Scouts Nation’s Capital is highly recognized for hosting leadership experiences for girls that provide them with the knowledge and tools to help them grow as strong leaders in their schools, communities, and world.

Each year, emerging girl leaders from across the region come together for Your Turn to Lead to explore and develop their own leadership skills in an inclusive and safe environment that embraces every aspect of their individuality. Moreover, they get to know other young leaders and community professionals who have similar motivations and can guide them in pursuing their passions and goals. Participants spend the day engaging in fun-filled activities and interactive workshops, and learn from influential community leaders. Attendees from previous conferences have had opportunities to meet industry executives, government officials, authors, artists, entrepreneurs, and more.

Who Can Attend?

Girls in middle and high school are invited to attend Your Turn to Lead. Girls do not have to be Girl Scouts to attend. Lunch will be provided. Bus transportation will be offered at select locations.

Make a Difference at the Conference & Earn Community Service Hours

Girls who attend Your Turn to Lead will have the opportunity to participate in a service project benefitting the Children’s Inn at NIH. Attendees will be eligible to earn service hours for this activity. They will also culminate the day by planning a Take Action project based on an issue they’re passionate about.

Dear Parent/Guardian,

Girl Scouts Nation’s Capital will be hosting its premier leadership conference, Your Turn to Lead: Your Voice Matters, on Saturday, November 21st at Howard University Law School. The conference is designed to empower girls in grades 6-12 to explore and develop their own leadership skills in an inclusive and safe environment that embraces every aspect of their individuality. Through interactive workshops and compelling keynote presentations, they will gain greater knowledge and tools to help them grow as strong leaders. Past attendees have had opportunities to meet high-profile government officials, industry executives, renowned athletes, artists and entrepreneurs.

As we anticipate the upcoming 2016 election year, Your Turn to Lead: Your Voice Matters will include workshops that focus on advocacy and grassroots organizing, branding/public speaking, social media, and overall leadership styles. Girls will also have an opportunity to earn community service hours by creating small gifts for children at the Children’s Inn at NIH. They will also participate in a Team Advocacy Challenge, addressing issues such as homelessness, hunger, and the environment.
